

Pro-social student culture and strategies

Students strongly agree that they treat each other with respect, and are good at listening to each others' views and ideas.

Students strongly agree that they include others who are being left out or ignored, and always stand up for others if someone is hassling them. They also strongly agree that they are able say how they feel if they need to, and treat other students with respect.

There is strong agreement that students know how to ask a teacher or other students for help if they are having a problem with another student.

Students strongly agree that they can stand up for themselves in a calm way, and that if other students are hassling them, they know how to ignore them or walk away.

Students strongly agree that they look after new students at school.

Students agree that they treat each other with respect, and agree that they include other students who are being left out or ignored.

Students agree that they are good at listening to each others' views and ideas, and that they treat teachers with respect. They agree that they can say how they are feeling when they need to and can stand up for themselves in a calm way.

Students agree that they always stand up for others who are being hassled. If they are having a problem with another student, they agree that they feel they can ask for a teacher's help, and know how to ask other students for help.

Students agree that if other students are hassling them they know how to ignore it or walk away. They also agree that they look after new students at school.

There is disagreement that students always stand up for those who are being hassled, that students include others who are being left out, and that students treat each other with respect.

Students disagree that they can say how they are feeling when they need to, or that they feel they can ask a teacher for help if they are having a problem with another student.

There is disagreement that students treat teachers with respect.

Students disagree that they are good at listening to each others' views and ideas.

Students disagree that if they have a problem with another student they know how to ask other students for help, and they also disagree that they can stand up for themselves in a calm way.

Students disagree that if other students are hassling them they know how to ignore them or walk away.

Students disagree that new students are looked after by others.